Principal's message

It gives me immense pleasure to share the second issue of 2020, volume IX e-Newsletter of VPP.

The COVID-19 Pandemic has forced us to adapt new lifestyle. "STAY HOME, STAY SAFE" slogan of the year 2020 made everyone to list out the priorities in life. Online teaching became an integral part of education. At VPP all staff members took up to online teaching effectively for all semesters. Also, several curricular and extracurricular activities were conducted for staff and students. I feel proud to share happenings at VPP with you...

Editor's message

Welcome to KLS VPP's Newsletter- Second Issue of 2020, Volume IX. As always the newsletter covers broadly the activities and events held between June – December, 2020. The transitioning from offline to online classes, though a challenging one during the pandemic was taken up by all the faculty at KLS VPP with an objective to keep the academics going in good stead and to stay connected to the students. Teachers took big leaps and used various online platforms and online pedagogical methods to teach students. Since December 2020, we have students of final year coming in for offline classes and at VPP we followed sanitization and social distancing very strictly. We now have a mix of both the offline and online classes which one could have never imagined a year ago. Two weeks Student Induction Programme was conducted using the online mode for the new entrants in the month of November. Faculty attended several online training programmes to upgrade their knowledge domain and remain in sync with the recent trends. Well, improvement is a dynamic process that we wish to continue.
